12h

“ Fargo,” FX’s anthology of homespun murder, is becoming an expertly made meta-concoction, our television critic writes. Season 3 premieres on Wednesday.

13h

Two movie theaters in California have installed playground equipment for children to play on. (But don’t worry, it’s not open while the show plays.)

14h

Snap is introducing on Tuesday a new feature for its Snapchat ephemeral messaging service that will allow users to place 3-D cartoon objects into their videos and pictures.

15h

Although Melania Trump’s dress at the White House Easter Egg Roll looked as classic as an Easter frock could be, it was actually something of a break with tradition.

16h

The Indian tycoon Vijay Mallya was arrested in London on Tuesday. He fled his home country more than a year ago under an avalanche of unpaid bills and fraud allegations.

19h

After the United Airlines debacle, hundreds of readers shared their travel stories, many with complaints but some with praise for the handling of their overbooked flights.

20h

News that New York City may require the ride-hailing app Uber to provide passengers with the option to tip drivers has once again stirred the longstanding debate over tipping.

1d

The latest television commercials for McDonald’s, featuring the actress Mindy Kaling, don’t mention McDonald’s at all. But they do mention Coca-Cola and Google.

1d

The number of Afghan women seeking divorce is rising, but many are met with harassment. It begins in the courtroom, and the struggle continues in their daily lives.

1d

The threat of a Hollywood strike is getting real. TV and movie writers will begin voting this week on whether to approve a walkout. Here’s what you need to know.
