Trump Rails Against Trade Deals, From Steel to Milk

By MARK LANDLER 9:24 PM ET

- While ordering an investigation into steel imports that are aimed at China and Japan, President Trump went off script to lay into Canada for hurting American dairy farmers.
- The flurry of anti-trade action appears to signal a comeback for the nationalist wing of the White House, but there has not yet been a concrete shift in policy.

Call for China to Cut Back on Steel Is Likely to Be Defied

By KEITH BRADSHAW

Global steel makers blame Chinese rivals for swamping the market, but closing mills there can be expensive and difficult.

Pursuing a Victory, White House Aims to Revive Health Bill

By MATT FLEGEMHEIMER and REED ABELSON

Desperate for progress on the vow to repeal the Affordable Care Act, Republicans are pushing to resurrect a health care bill even as a more urgent deadline looms to avoid a government shutdown.
